

Left, triplets Julia, Anna, and Noah Greenblatt with Jacob Adler on his new bicycle.

Below, Rabbi Moshe Grossbaum, director of the Friendship Circle of Bergen County, with Jacob and his new bike.

He's got wheels

The Friendship Circle, a local nonprofit organization that pairs Bergen County teenagers with special-needs children, helped raise money to buy a $4,500 bicycle to help Jacob Adler of Teaneck, 12, who has cerebral palsy, increase his mobility.

Triplets 4 A Cause (Julia, Anna, and Noah Greenblatt) also raised $1,200 for the project by assembling and selling "care packages" with knick-knacks and certified kosher, nut-free, pareve snacks to send to children in camp. Packages cost $25 and the deadline to order is Monday, June 28. Checks should be made payable to The Friendship Circle. For information on ordering, e-mail T4C@triplets4acause.com or www.triplets4acause.com. A bake sale at Ma'ayanot High School for Girls in Teaneck netted several thousand dollars. All extra proceeds will benefit The Friendship Circle (www.BCFriendship.com).

